CO-OPERATION IS MORE THAN WORK NOW— IT'S A WAR NECESSITY!

LET'S CO-OPERATE BY STAYING ON THE JOB EVERY DAY!

War Production To Continue Until Japan Is Defeated

Local Plants Observe V-E Day With Holiday

Now that V-E day has come and gone, war workers know that it is just as essential to stay on the job now as it was before. Local plants closed at 9:25 a.m. Tuesday in observance of the European victory but resumed operation at 7:00 a.m. Wednesday due to the extreme need by the fighting forces in the Pacific theater for products manufactured here.

Most of the Greensboro plants which have been engaged in war production since early stages of the war are still engaged almost 100 per cent in war production and will remain so until the defeat of Japan. According to J. R. Simmons, manager of the Greensboro United States employment office, majority of the products now being manufactured under war contracts are destined to direct shipment to the Pacific war zone.

Experiment Proves Of Value To Ceasar Cone Students

Members of Miss Heffner's fourth and fifth grades at Ceasar Cone school are doing some experimenting with two white rats. The object of the experiment is to prove the value of a balanced diet in human beings.

One rat, whose name in Happy, gets a balanced lunch every day, the other, Sleepy, eats cakes, candies, soft drinks and other sweets. The true facts are revealed in the weight of the two rats. Happy's average gain per week has been 28 grams, and Sleepy's average per week has been 5.3 grams. These results are applied to lessons on nutrition for children.

First American Cemetery in Europe Being Laid Out After Arlington Plan

IN NORMANDY—Here lie America's honored dead in Europe, in the first cemetery to be constructed there for the dead of this war. Engineers survey for new graves in preparation for copying Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia, near the Nation's Capital. No American soldier will be interred on German soil, the Army has announced. Instead, they will rest in the beautiful Normandy countryside where tender care will be accorded their graves in the years to come. —Army Signal Corps Photo

"Y" Physical Director Stresses Importance Of Swimming

With the approach of summer many people look toward the beaches and swimming places with anticipation of great pleasure. Water holds an irresistible lure and fascination for both children and adults.

Swimming is undoubtedly one of the greatest exercises in the world. It brings into play every muscle of the body. It is a great physical conditioner because the muscles of the neck, chest, trunk, legs and arms are all used. This causes symmetrical development of the entire body. And above all, swimming enables one to take care of himself in dangerous situations in the water. It has been estimated that at least 90 percent of the annual water fatalities are direct results of fact that so many people are totally ignorant of correct water conduct and are not aware of safety precautions that need to be adhered to if water accidents are to be avoided.

Most adults who are able to swim, do not swim often enough to feel completely at ease in the water on entering. That need not be true with the people of the local community. The Cone Memorial YMCA's two large pools are ever ready and inviting to all its members. The water is kept pure and at the proper temperature that affords a pleasant reaction when one plunges in for an enjoyable swim or perhaps just to splash about or to float around in a completely relaxed manner.

There are scheduled classes at present for non-swimmers, both old and young, instructions for better swimming and also Life Saving and Water Safety classes.

All adult members of the YMCA are invited to swim informally throughout the day. Those who are non-swimmers are invited to join a Learn-to-swim class. It is never too late to start learning to swim except in a case of drowning.

President Proclaims Sunday As National Day Of Prayer

Proclamation Of Peace In Europe Heard Tuesday

President Truman last Tuesday at 9:00 a.m. proclaimed to the United States complete and unconditional victory in Europe. Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Marshal Josef Stalin announced the victory to their respective nations on the same day.

"Our blows will continue until the Japanese lay down their arms in unconditional surrender," declared Mr. Truman.

The President told the nation that he had set Sunday, Mother's day, as a day of prayer in which he wanted all to join.

"Let us not forget," he asserted, "the sorrow and the heartbreak which today abide in the homes of so many of our neighbors—neighbors whose most priceless possession has been rendered as a sacrifice to redeem our liberty.

"We can repay the debt which we owe to our God, to our dead and to our children only by work—by ceaseless devotion to the responsibilities which lie ahead of us. If I could give you a single watchword for the coming months, that word is work, work, work.

"I call upon every American to stick to his post until the last battle is won. Until that day, let no man abandon his post or slacken his efforts."

Following his speech, the President read the formal proclamation of the surrender and of the day of prayer Sunday.

Competition Is Best For America

The competitive spirit, a product of freedom, accounts more than any other force for American productive ingenuity and war might, according to James A. Farley, former Postmaster General.

"Imagine, if you can," he said recently, "an America in which there was only one political party. Imagine an America with all enterprise owned by the State. Imagine an America with only one press—the government's.

"In borrowing totalitarian ways for the prosecution of the war," he went on, "it was our aim to rid ourselves of them at the earliest possible moment. I am convinced that Congress, once this war is over, will take the lead in speediest restoration of all democratic processes."

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

BY JAMES PRESTON

The wealthy Montana liberal, Sen. James E. Murray, has come out in favor of laws to curb the powers of federal bureaucrats.

The Montanan, who was a Canadian-born farm boy, wants bureaucracy restricted, as a means of protecting small business.

Chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Small Business, he said recently: "Small business needs administrative law reform," and urged immediate enactment of proposals to provide court review of bureaucratic decisions and regulations on the ground that "legislative correction in the field of so-called 'administrative law' has become a recognized need."

Two Bills Introduced

Two bills specifically forbidding federal agencies to go beyond their legal power in imposing penalties or awarding benefits are among several reform measures now before Congress. All of these bills provide that any citizen who deems himself a victim of bureaucratic tyranny may appeal to the courts. As part of his activity in support of the reforms, Sen. Murray had printed in the Congressional Record a speech by David A. Simmons of Houston, Texas, advocating passage of one of the administrative law bills.

With public impatience over bureaucratic domination breaking into the open as the war emergency eases, the Montanan's decision to get off the New Deal bandwagon for this occasion may assume considerable importance. In the Senate since 1934, he has become something more than a "pick-and-shovel man" working under New Deal direction. If he decides to put up a fight for administrative law reforms, Sen. Murray may influence a lots of votes.

MAJ. J. T. CARRUTHERS, JR.

Major Carruthers Wins Praise For Ordnance Work Done In Italy

Maj. Joseph T. Carruthers, Jr., 2403 Sylvan road, former member of the North Carolina state legislature from Guilford county, has recently distinguished himself with the ordnance operations of the peninsular base section, important supply and services organization for the Fifth army.

While he was commanding the 686th ordnance ammunition company, a unit whose members he personally recruited from Greensboro, Winston-Salem, and High Point, the 686th company received the meritorious service unit plaque "for superior performance of duty in the accomplishment of exceptionally difficult tasks in the peninsular base section".

In recent months Major Carruthers has served as supervisory officer of an Italian army ordnance battalion attached to the 2698th technical supervision regiment, directing the hazardous task of converting high explosive shells into smoke and incendiary projectiles, filling the important order for the Fifth army in record time.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Carruthers, 1212 Fairview street, and husband of Mrs. Mary Frances Sutton Carruthers, 2403 Sylvan road, Major Carruthers practiced law and was Democratic nominee for the state senate before entering the army. He represented Guilford county in the North Carolina state legislature from 1937 to 1941. He received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Duke university in 1929, and a Bachelor of Laws degree in 1932. He and his wife have legal custody of a nephew.

Commissioned a captain in the ordnance department at Camp Sutton, on June 25, 1942, Major Carruthers was placed on detached service and assigned to interview and recruit army volunteers for ordnance units. Of the total of 358 personally recruited by him, 180 became members of the newly-activated company "T", 4th Battalion, 302nd ordnance base regiment. Major Carruthers served as commanding officer of the company during its basic training course at Camp Sutton, and during its advanced training at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

Company "T" sailed from New York in May, 1943, for North Africa, and went ashore at Casablanca, French Morocco. After four months of ordnance depot management and ammunition operations in North Africa, company "T" crossed over to the Italian mainland on October 10, 1943, to take over the operation of a large depot of important ammunition for the Fifth army. The designation of the company was changed to 686th ordnance ammunition company.

The award of the meritorious service unit plaque was made to Major Carruthers' company for its outstandingly efficient work in supplying ammunition for the Anzio beachhead and the Cassino battle area.

Major Carruthers was recently assigned to the 2698th technical supervision regiment, an attached unit of the peninsular base section which maintains supervisory control over approximately 50,000 Italian army service troops.

38,500,000 Troops Carried By Railroads

Approximately 38,500,000 troops were carried by rail in organized movements from Pearl Harbor to the end of February, 1945, according to the Association of American Railroads. This number does not include the millions of others traveling under orders in smaller groups or on furloughs.

A fair question—requiring a straight answer.

The Money Is Needed For War

The Battle of Japan has just begun. It must be backed up, paid for, fought for by a free people, intent on sweeping the Pacific clear of fascist hate—forever.

With the war in the West our first and major concern, we have not yet been able to go all-out in the East. But neither has the Jap.

The war to crush Japan will be bigger, tougher and longer than most Americans expect. The Allied Military Command has estimated that it will take years, not months.

The destruction of Japan's armies has not yet reached the annual rate of normal replacements—between 200,000 and 250,000 men a year. And the Jap, as our men in the Pacific know, fights to the death.

As far as Japan is concerned, the outer Empire—and the men who defend it—are expendables. The Jap will fight the Battle of Japan from inside the inner Empire, of which Iwo Jima was an outpost. And Iwo Jima, according to Admiral Nimitz, was a pattern of the resistance our forces may expect to meet in future offensives.

New Tasks, New Needs

The single greatest obstacle to our crushing of Japan is distance. While in the Battle of Europe supply ships from our bases in England had only an overnight run to make, ships in the Pacific have long-reach round trips taking up to 5 months to make.

To crush Japan will take time, heroic and backbreaking effort, overpowering equipment.

Millions of fighting men—freshly outfitted and equipped—will have to be moved from Europe halfway around the globe; and supplied day-in, day-out by hundreds of new ships now building.

More of everything will be needed. More B-29s. More tanks, halftracks, jeeps and trucks. More rockets, mortars, airborne radar.

A whole new air force is in creation—huge new bombers dwarfing the Superfortress—fast new jet-propelled combat planes, the P-80 or "Shooting Star," coming off the lines by thousands.

These are just some of the 101 ways in which your dollars are needed more than ever to bring America's might to its full strength—so that we may crush our foe the faster, make an end of killing, and bring our men back home.

And Lest We Forget

The sick, wounded and disabled will require medical attention and care.

Many millions of dollars will be required for mustering out pay and benefits voted by Congress to help our veterans get started again in civilian life.

That's the least we can do in return for what they've done for us.

Winning The Peace

There are other weighty reasons for supporting the 7th War Loan—reasons that take us from the present to the future.

By investing in the 7th War Loan, the patriotic American is safeguarding his own future, his country's future.

By putting every dollar over rock-bottom expenses into the purchase of War Bonds, he is delivering a body blow to wartime Inflation—thus putting a lid on the cost of living and maintaining intact the purchasing power of the dollar. At the same time, too, he is insuring the country and himself against the catastrophe of a possible postwar deflation—with its depression, unemployment, misery and heartache.

So save for your country—save for yourself. In helping your country, you are also helping yourself! Comes peace, we'll all need money for education, replacements, retirement, new homes, a new start—and we'll need a lot of it. And there isn't a better or safer highroad to your goal than

Dr. Neese Is Speaker At Revolution Club

Gives Interesting Talk At Club's Regular Meeting

Dr. Edgar Neese, pastor of West Market Street Methodist church, spoke on "The Home" at the regular meeting of Revolution Community club last Friday evening in the club room.

"It takes a lot of living in a house to make a home," quoted Dr. Neese. "Home is not determined by wealth or modern conveniences. The environment makes of our children largely what they are—Christian or heathen. The home should be a place of:

1. Physical relaxation — entertainment, self-expression.
2. Intellectual stimulation — good books, good pictures and good music.
3. Moral reinforcement — fortified against temptation.
4. Spiritual revelation—respect for good wholesome Christian living and the Church."

Dr. Neese stressed the fact that our children are the best investment—they deserve the best example we can set, and the training for upright, dependable Christian living.

At the conclusion of the program, frozen fruit salad and coffee were served by Mrs. Arthur Ward and Mrs. Carl Wyrick.

Flowers for the club room were furnished by Mrs. J. L. Hinshaw and Mrs. Herman Hinshaw and arranged by Mrs. Floyd Davis. A vase of yellow iris was sent to Mrs. Oscar Ward, who is recuperating from an operation.

Forrest Yates Hurt In Motorcycle Accident

Forrest Yates, 17, of 1507 16th street, White Oak, suffered painful bruises but no serious injuries about 12:40 Tuesday when he lost control of his motorcycle and crashed in the 2300 block of Summit avenue, near Gate 6 of ORD.

He was taken by ambulance to St. Leo's hospital and remained unconscious for a while, it was reported.

Robert Beal of 1509 16th street, who was riding behind Yates on the same motorcycle was not hurt.

Color Conditioning To Protect Workers

A postwar program for scientifically "color-conditioning" industrial interiors, designed to protect employees against eyestrain by reducing glare and eliminating extreme contrasts between light and dark, is announced by E. I. du Pont de Nemours and company.

Among the benefits are increased production, improved quality of workmanship and reduced personal injuries.

The program is the outcome of long-term research that already has done much toward "putting color to work" for industrial efficiency, the company says.

Veteran Benefits Are Not Automatic

America's disabled veterans receive no automatic benefits from the government, Dow V. Walker of Newport, Ore., chairman of the Disabled American Veterans national finance committee, recently warned.

He pointed out that claims must be filed in every instance and that every claim must be substantiated.

"Every discharged veteran," he said, "should fully realize that he just can't go back home and expect to find pension checks in his mail box. Contrary to public opinion, the government does not automatically take care of the disabled veteran. Claims must be filed on every count and the validity of those claims must be proven."

Walker said the Disabled American Veterans is assisting disabled veterans and the dependents of deceased veterans throughout the nation in the preparation and filing of claims.

What Should We Do?

Strictly speaking, no official V-E Day was announced in the United States. President Truman's address at nine o'clock, May 8, emphasized two things.

First, he pointed out that the war is only half over and that until Japan is completely crushed our boys must still fight.

Second, he emphasized that it is the duty of the people of this country to work, work and work!

He then designated Sunday, May 13, as a day of prayer.

We who have been spared the actual horrible experiences of war can certainly subscribe to the contents of the President's message.

We can but rejoice over the end of the European War but we must, at the same time, remain fully aware of the fact that our job is not over and that the "work, work and work" program urged by the President is definitely in order.

We must each do our part to furnish our fighting men in the Pacific with each and every item that they require in effectively taking the war into the very heart of Japan. We cannot have on our conscience any guilt for the prolonging of the war or for unnecessary casualties of our boys in the Pacific.

Some may be slightly disappointed that we have been unable to enjoy a long holiday of rejoicing. In the face of the President's message and our own conscientious realization, such a spree of rejoicing would definitely be out of order. This is a time for thankful prayer and a resolute determination to carry on until such time as we can rightfully say "The War is Over," then and only then can we afford to let go and relax.

Let's remember that the men in the Pacific cannot let up. They cannot celebrate. They cannot take victory holidays. They must continue to work, fight, suffer and die. What should we do?

The Job To Be Done

"I call upon every American to stick to his post until the last battle is won. Until that day let no man abandon his post or slacken his efforts."

These are the words and the tone of President Truman's address to the nation on the defeat of Germany. He reminded us of the terrible price we and our allies have paid to defeat the Nazi and of the long and bloody war still to be won in the east. He asked us to observe Mother's Day as a day of prayer for help and for thanksgiving.

We should remember his words as the spoken expression of what most of us feel. He has pointed the way for us to follow:

"If I could give you a single watchword for the coming months, that word is—work, work, work.

"We must work to finish the war. Our victory is but half won. The west is free but the east is still in bondage to the treacheous tyranny of the Japanese. When the last Japanese division has surrendered unconditionally, then only will our fighting job be done."

Let us accept this as a personal message to each man and woman at the Cone Mills in Greensboro.

No Quick Victory In The Pacific Expected

While the war in the Pacific "today is ahead of our expectations," a quick and easy victory cannot be taken for granted, even after the European war is over, Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King, Commander-in-Chief of the U. S. Fleet and Chief of Naval Operations declared in his annual report to the Secretary of the Navy.

"We have gone ahead rapidly because we have been able to keep steady pressure on the enemy," Fleet Admiral King said. "It is of the utmost importance that we not only maintain this pressure but intensify it. There must be no relaxation of the fighting effort, nor of the industrial effort that makes the fighting effort possible. I make a special point of this because of recent indications that industry is having difficulty in meeting the needs of the armed services. This is cause for concern since, if the industrial output falls off, the effect will be to prolong the war at great cost in American lives as well as money."

Paying tribute to the "magnificient productive capacity of the United States which has given us the greatest Navy in all history," the Commander-in-Chief said that the genius of our research and industry has put us a long step ahead of our naval enemies in effectiveness of ships, planes and weapons.

"The Navy is deeply grateful to industry for its accomplishments," he added, "which have enabled the Navy to play a large and effective part in the landings of the Allied armies in Europe, as well as to prosecute the Pacific war with a vigor evidenced by the rapid advance towards Japan in recent months."

Fleet Admiral King emphasized that "the very speed of our advance has created new production problems. Our accelerated operations are placing a heavy strain upon reserves of certain vital items, while production of certain necessities is falling behind mounting requirements."

Characterizing the Pacific war as still in the "crossing the ocean" phase, the Commander-in-Chief observed that "therefore, the essential element of our dominance over the Japanese has been the strength of our Fleet. The ability to move troops from island to island, and to put them ashore against opposition, is due to the fact that our command of the sea is spreading as Japanese naval strength withers . . . While we rejoice in the reoccupation of Guam and the Philippines we must constantly realize that we are only now gaining a position from which we can assault the heart of Japanese strength. That is our goal, and the enemy is welcome to know that we shall continue to press him with every means at our command."

7th War Loan Drive Starts Monday, May 14

United States Savings Bonds.

Making 2 Equal 3!

This year there will be only two War Loan drives, not three. But in those two drives the Government will have to raise almost as much money from individuals as in the three drives last year. That means bigger extra bonds in the 7th. Because only by buying more can we make 2 take the place of 3.

The 27 million Americans who buy bonds on payroll savings are already off to a flying start. These patriotic men and women began their buying in April. And they will keep on buying extra bonds through May and June!

It's now up to the rest of us. It's our turn to swing in line. To raise the vast sum needed, every American will have to dig deeper into current income—dig deeper into cash reserves. Only by buying bigger extra bonds can we stretch 2 into 3!

Let all Americans do their part—for their own sake, for their country's.

Foundry Process Is Revolutionized

One of the most revolutionary processes in a thousand years of foundry practice is responsible for production by General Motors of the most accurate big castings ever known.

With surface finish and a dimensional accuracy hitherto undreamed of except in small "precision" casting, GM is making enormous retreading molds for B-29 bomber tires, 800-pound aluminum tractor tire matrics and regulator housings for aircraft propellers. Key to the achievement is the violation of one of the oldest principles of foundry practice—using sand for molds. In place of sand GM uses special, carefully processed mixtures of plaster of Paris which give the smoothness and accuracy that sand does not have.

Godfather of the whole program is Charles F. Kettering, GM vice president in charge of research, whose interest in the project began when the firm adopted both foundry and process from Antioch College, which had used it for coeds to cast bronzes for their art courses.

Surplus Planes To Serve Research

The aviation industry, in conjunction with the armed services, is embarking on a research program to uncover new secrets in design and performance of both military and civilian planes.

Thousands of expendable surplus military planes will be used in the scientifically controlled "crash" testing which will accelerate developments in safety and efficiency.

Initial stages of the project are being coordinated by the airplane technical committee of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. More than 50 types of structural and performance tests are planned, including: flight tests under conditions far exceeding normal requirements to determine performance limits; investigations of engine life at extreme high powers; scientific crashing of radio-controlled or pilot abandoned aircraft before high-speed cameras to advise pilots on forced landings.

Do your country a double service by putting the money you save into war bonds, life insurance, savings. That's the way to head off inflation.

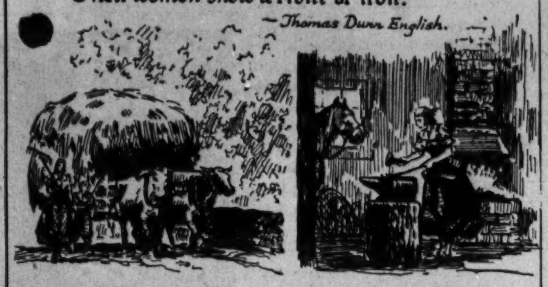
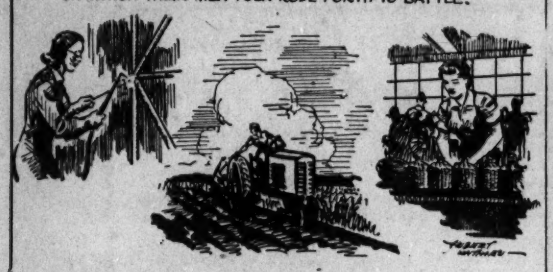
WOMEN'S WORK—IN WARTIME

"When greater dangers men environ
Then women show a front of iron."
—Thomas Dunn English.



WHEN WAR CAME IN 1776, THE WOMEN OF NEW ENGLAND TURNED FARMERS AND MUNITIONS MAKERS — IN MANY CASES MANNING ANVILS AND SHOEING THE HORSES ON WHICH THEIR MEN-FOLK RODE FORTH TO BATTLE.



WOMEN OF AMERICA TODAY ARE SHOULDERING A LIKE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE EQUIPMENT AND MOBILITY OF OUR ARMIES IN THE FIELD—ON PRODUCTION LINES IN FACTORIES AND ARSENALS AND ON THE NATION'S FARMS THEY ARE WORKING TO FEED, TO CLOTHE, TO ARM AND TO INSPIRE THEIR FIGHTING MEN——A MIGHTY FORCE FOR VICTORY.

Soup Mergers Make Headlines

News note from our soup-kitchen correspondent reports that mergers of canned condensed soups are now high-style stuff. Rare new soups turn up when two old favorites are fused. Exotic flavors blossom when vegetable meets fish. Textures take on exciting contrast when the bland makes friends with something crisp. And the blended colors make your first course brilliant, beautiful, and brisk.

There are practical aspects to this merging, too: Three varieties take the place of two. Mergers require no extra time to do. And nutritional double-headers generally result. Here are some lusty combinations:

1. Condensed cream of tomato soup plus Condensed cream of mushroom soup equal Tomato Bisque.

2. Condensed cream of green pea soup plus Condensed cream of tomato soup equal Vegetable Potage.

3. Condensed cream of mushroom soup plus Condensed cream of green pea soup equal Cream of Mushroom and Pea Soup.

4. Condensed vegetarian vegetable soup without meat plus Condensed chicken noodle soup equal Minestrone Soup.

5. Condensed bean soup plus Condensed cream of green pea soup equal Puree Mongole.

6. Condensed cream of tomato soup plus Condensed clam chowder equal Tomato-Clam Chowder.

7. Condensed bean soup plus Condensed cream of tomato soup equal Tomato-Bean Soup.

8. Condensed crema of mushroom soup plus Scotch broth equal Mushroom Scotch Broth.

Marriage a La Mode

The war, which has given us a global point of view, has brought internationalism to our tables also. Proof of this is the recent marriage between American foods and continental favorites. Take this recipe for Veal Paprika with Beans, for instance. The very name recalls the haunting frenzy of Romany song. It shimmers like burnished copper by a gypsy camp fire, has the luster of old earthenware in a Magyar inn.

In Hungary, veal paprika is as much a folk dish as oven-baked beans are native here. How fitting, then, is this new blend. You'll find both flavors complement each other. The ingredients seem rightly paired. Veal, that tenderest of meats, embraced in sour cream, made ardent by the fierce red spice. And beans, the ready-to-serve-kind, lavish in a sauce to their own liking. Mix them, and you'll make one of the true love matches of the table. Try it so:

Veal Paprika With Beans

In—
¼ cup fat
brown—
2 medium onions, sliced
1 lb. veal cutlet, diced in 1-inch pieces.
Sprinkle and mix well with—
1 tablespoon paprika.
Add—
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups water
Simmer, stirring occasionally until veal is tender and water is evaporated.
Add—
1 17½-oz. jar oven-baked beans with tomato sauce.
Heat thoroughly. Just before serving add—
½ cup sour cream.
Serves 6.

To Decentralize Auto Factories

Decentralization of automobile manufacturing plants, to advance output, relieve congested centers and spread postwar employment, is included in expansion plans under consideration by General Motors.

"The proposed schedule does not mean that any established peacetime plants will be abandoned," the manufacturers explain, adding:

"In our selection of sites we will consider the proximity to market, availability of raw materials, availability of labor—which includes quantity, quality and attitude—supply of management experience, and taxes, housing and kindred community factors.

"With a diversity in employment units the payrolls are spread over the country and many economic benefits result."

Two young women were seated side by side on the resort hotel portch. One read Edward Everett Hale's "The Man Without a Country," the other looked wearily about the girl infested place.

"Oh, signed the first with tender sympathy, "could anything be sadder than a man without a country?"

"Yes," replied the other gloomly, "a country without a man."

A middle-aged woman lost her balance and fell out of a window into a garbage can. Chinaman passing remarked: "Americans velly wasteful. The woman good for 10 years yet."

Additional Profit Curb Not Needed

By James Preston

Washington, May 10 — Because manpower in the armed services and in industry should be devoted entirely to winning the war, administrative problems should be simplified rather than unnecessarily made more complicated.

That's the position business is taking with regard to the armed services' program to reprice 3,000 war contracts—arbitrarily reducing the price of goods still to be manufactured—as an additional safeguard against profiteering.

With excess profits taxes up to 95 per cent, manufacturers feel that additional control is unnecessary. Moreover, such additional control, if it should prove necessary, already is provided by renegotiation of contracts after jobs have been finished and profits can be determined.

Seizure Threat

To demand under threat of plant seizure that contractors take up the additional burden of the cost analysis, the filing of statements, and the other administrative details of compulsory repricing, is to ask that skilled executives and accountants waste time that should be devoted to more vital problems.

Manufacturers have never complained about war taxes, and they are willing to continue renegotiation. They do object to repricing.

Even the army has less textiles than it needs. To cope with the situation salvage units are set up close to the front lines, where garments, tents—anything made of cloth — are cleaned and repaired to be used over. Take a tip from the army—repair, mend, make over.

Growing Is A Personal Affair

Just as his eyes and nose and hair and mouth are peculiarly his own, and not—in spite of fond families and doting friends—the "spittin' image" of his parents, so your baby's bodily development is highly idividual, too. He will have his own rate of growth and progress. He may sprout up like a bean stalk while the child next door seems to grow only by the millimeter. Yet the small neighbor may be more adept at talking or walking than your own young giant. These are highly individual matters, dependent entirely on your baby's personal rhythm of development.

So, too, with his eating. Some babies are ready for semi-solid foods several months before another. Be sure to consult your baby's doctor before making any changes in his diet. He will know best when your baby is ready for strained and junior foods. As a rule, along towards the third month doctor will say the time has come for a little semi-solid food, and so prepared cereal food is called for. This is mixed with some of baby's formula, or milk, to a very thin consistency, and served.

Next come strained fruits, vegetables, and soups, again milk-mixed at first, then gradually served thicker until baby can handle them just as they come from the containers. By the end of the first year, his physician may graduate your baby to junior foods—those chopped and sauced, prepared-recipe dishes, packed especially to bridge the gap between strained foods and family meals.

In busy times like these, when most doctors are seeing double the number of patients they handled in peace time, mothers should be considerate of the demands made on their time. Always consult your doctor, however, before making any radical changes in your baby's diet. The chances are, if your baby is developing well, that your physician will suggest some such feeding schedule as this for your baby's first seven months:

Foods By The Month In Addition To Milk

First Month:
Fish Liver Oil—Orange Juice.
Second Month:
Fish Liver Oil—Orange Juice.
Third Month:

Don't Want To Take Government Jobs

U. S. Army men do not favor federal government jobs, according to a War Department survey which shows that two-thirds of the men whose minds were made up had been in government jobs before going into uniform.

Only five per cent said they want government jobs and another five like the idea but do not have clearly formulated plans.

Autopilot Brings Bombers To Base

Approximately 10,000 Air Force personnel have been saved from crash or capture by the guiding hand of an electronic pilot, the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regular company, maker of automatic control systems, reveals.

More than 1,000 bombers of the Eighth Air Force alone, their manual controls shot away, have been brought back to their bases by electronic devices which the American instrument industry has perfected.

How 140 company technicians, a unique civilian group, serve with the Army Air Force, is told in a Minneapolis-Honeywell report. Located at every major American air base and in every war theater, these men teach pilots, navigators and maintenance men how to use and service the M-H tronic controls.

The company also operates a s in Minneapolis and one in Eng where men of the Air Forces, Marines, Canadian, Australian Royal Air Forces receive training
